By ROBERT MYERS
HONOLULU (AP) — American policy makers, in the final hours of their secret strategy talks, were occupied today with the question of what more the United States must do to prop up Southeast Asia against intensified Communist pressure.

The two-day meeting already was setting off political reverberations in election-conscious Washington. But the assembled diplomatic and military authorities at Pacific Command headquarters appeared to ignore—at least officially—everything but the subjects at hand.

Efforts to solve the Southeast Asia crisis began Monday with a more-than nine-hour session that convened in a heavily guarded room, moved to a private beach for a working lunch and closed back behind locked doors.

That same schedule was in force today with most of the officials, including Secretary of State Dean Rusk, who presided, and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, who planned to fly home to Washington after final adjournment about dusk.

None of the conferees would disclose what directions their meetings were taking. It appeared likely that details of any recommendations will be revealed only after approval by President Johnson.

Pesticides Tested by Agri Dept.

By OVID A. MARTIN
Associated Press Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman intends to try to prove through field tests and studies that properly applied chemical pesticides are not a hazard to humans and wildlife.

He and other interested government agencies are placing five teams of scientists in the Mississippi River area to collect information in an effort to disprove allegations blaming chemical pesticides for fish kills and other losses to wildlife.

The department, in the face of strong criticism of widespread use of pesticides and the like, has taken the position that agricultural chemicals are absolutely essential to bountiful production of food and fiber.

Freeman's decision to make the field tests was announced in a statement Monday. It said evidence submitted at public hearings here, at Memphis, Tenn., and Baton Rouge, La., and a four-state conference at New Orleans failed to show that pesticides were responsible for recent fish kills in the Lower Mississippi River.

"None of the evidence presented either at the hearings or at the conference was scientifically adequate, in the judgment of the agriculture department, to justify withdrawal of endrin, aldrin, or dieldrin (the questioned chemicals) from farm use," Freeman said.

He said surveys showed that a major source of pesticide residues involved in the fish losses was an industrial plant manufacturing these chemicals, rather than in water that ran off farmland that drained into the Mississippi.

The field studies will be conducted with the cooperation of the Department of Welfare, the Interior Department and other government agencies through the federal pest control review board.

Freeman said the team of scientists will make studies of soil, silt, runoff and well or cistern water, from pesticide-treated land as well as studies of insects, wildlife, crops and other plantlife and fish.

Students Told Seek State Opportunities

BATESVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The 42 graduates of Arkansas College here were urged Sunday to seek opportunities in Arkansas by Mrs. Winthrop Rockefeller, wife of the Republican gubernatorial candidate.

Mrs. Rockefeller delivered the commencement address and was one of two women to receive honorary degrees during graduation exercises.

Mrs. Rockefeller cited progress in Arkansas in per capita income, more job opportunity and increased industry.

"Never has Arkansas future been so bright or attainable," she told the graduates. "Arkansas provides opportunities for jobs, and cultural development as provides opportunities for jobs, and cultural development unsurpassed in its history."

Mrs. Rockefeller said Arkansas is a leader among states in career opportunity.

Mrs. Rockefeller received an honorary Doctor of Humanities degree for her work in the development of art and in the area of mental health.

Long Fingernails Key to Whether a Girl Is a Good Stenographer or Not

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:
The poorest stenographers in the office usually have the longest fingernails. No girl has the energy and power of attention to do her work well and still take proper care of mandarin-length fingernails.

Negro Terrorist Attacks on New York Subways

NEW YORK (AP)—Plans for more subway police and a two-way radio network have been spurred by Negro terrorist attacks in sections of New York City.

Officials emphasized it would be several months before the measures could be put into effect.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner called a meeting today of police and Transit Authority officials.

Transit officials said bids on short-wave radios for one Manhattan subway line will be opened June 19. A planned 20 per cent increase in the 97 2-man subway police force will not take effect until next fall.

The men are training now.

Demands for more police protection came after incidents last weekend in which bands of Negroes beat, knifed, robbed and terrorized whites on four subway trains and a Staten Island ferryboat.

Police disclosed that they are seeking a light-skinned Negro with a shaved head in the rape-murder of teacher Charlotte Lipsik, 38, whose body was found in the elevator of her apartment building on Saturday.

Police distributed an artist's sketch of a man they said raped a 19-year-old Negro girl half a mile from Miss Lipsik's home shortly after she was killed.

The girl told police her assailant said: "I don't want to give you what I just gave to the other one."

Miss Lipsik lived three blocks from the headquarters of the Maccabee radio-car patrol in the Crown Heights section of Brooklyn. It borders the Bedford-Stuyvesant section, a Negro neighborhood.

The Crown Heights community of ultra-orthodox Hasidic Jews set up the patrols to guard against marauders they said often came from Bedford-Stuyvesant.

After a meeting with Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy, Rabbi Samuel Schrage, who organized the patrols, said: "We learned of the police problem and difficulty in getting enough men into the department and onto the street. The commissioner assured us he would do everything in his power to protect our area and all areas of the city."

The Rabbi said the Maccabee patrols would continue.

Murphy said that he was putting extra radio cars in Crown Heights and that a proportionate number of new policemen from this summer's graduating class would be assigned to the area.

Civil rights leaders were virtually unanimous in describing the weekend outburst of violence as indicating the frustration of a minority group unfairly denied proper education, housing and employment.

Factions Agree Rights Bill Is Watered Down

By JOE HALL
WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said today he expects the Senate to pass the civil rights bill by June 18 — if next week's effort to cut off debate is successful.

Dirksen said he "would rather guess" supporters of the House-passed legislation would be able to muster the necessary two-thirds vote to impose cloture and cut off the rights debate. If all 100 senators vote, the votes of 67 senators will be needed.

Dirksen and Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield agreed Monday to file a cloture petition—which requires 16 names — on Saturday. This would mean a vote next Tuesday, June 9.

Dirksen said he was confident the GOP forces would produce more than two-thirds of their number for cloture. There are 33 Republican senators. Dirksen has been trying to line up 25 for cutting off the debate and has said even this figure might be exceeded.

If 25 Republicans support cloture, 42 Democratic votes would be needed — assuming all 100 senators vote. An Associated Press survey at the start of the week listed 58 senators committed to support cloture, 26 opposed and 16 undecided or refusing to commit themselves.

Mansfield declined to predict success of the cloture attempt. "I'm figuring to do my best," he said.

The Senate has imposed cloture only five times in history and never on a civil rights measure.

Assistant Democratic Leader Hubert H. Humphrey, the bill's floor manager, said, "I think we have the votes for cloture. It's going to be awfully close."

The leadership is counting on revisions in the bill, introduced last week by Mansfield and Dirksen, to pick up the necessary votes for cloture.

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, said, however, that he was still unhappy with several sections of the bill. Hickenlooper, who heads the Senate Republican faction, said he would continue on Page Two

Showdown at Hand Between Rocky, Barry

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Republican presidential race steams into a critical turn today as Sen. Barry Goldwater and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller meet in their dramatic California showdown.

After the smoke has cleared and the primary votes counted, Republicans may have a clearer idea whether Goldwater's strong charge toward the nomination can be stopped — or whether perhaps it has gained unstoppable momentum.

Rockefeller is Goldwater's only opponent in today's balloting and write-ins are not counted. Thus supporters of some of the other contenders are rallying around the New York governor's colors.

At immediate stake are California's 86 delegates to the Republican National Convention. Some observers feel that with Goldwater's strong lead in delegates a California victory will almost assure him of the GOP nomination.

On the other hand, a defeat, some feel, will make it a new race and a wide-open field with Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania and Richard M. Nixon figuring strongly.

While the limelight glared on California five other states — Alabama, Mississippi, Montana, New York and South Dakota — also had primaries today, pick-

Asks Opinion About Non Residents

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Leon Brents, justice of the peace in Nichols Township in Conway County, asked Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett Monday for an opinion on what makes a person a non-resident.

Brents told Bennett he found some striking parallels in alleged dual voting in his home county and some of the grounds cited by Bennett is saying E. T. Ridgeway couldn't run for governor.

The justice asked for a ruling on whether persons registering and voting in another state and living, working and been subject to its laws established an intent to abandon Arkansas, making them non-residents.

Three residents of Royal Oak, Mich., allegedly voted in both Conway County and in Michigan in 1962. U.S. Atty. Robert D. Smith said last November that FBI agents had found that three persons voted in both places, but this was not a federal violation.

Bennett said Ridgeway could not run for governor in the Democratic primary because he had been convicted of embezzlement, a felony, in 1955 while delinquent tax collector in Jackson County. He later said Ridgeway was also ineligible to run because he lived in Virginia.

The state Supreme Court ruled Monday that Ridgeway could not run.

Gold Outflow Halt Good for America

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Gold flowing into the United States instead of away and new respect for the American dollar in foreign money markets are counted among the happiest surprises of the year's first half.

New monetary strength goes hand in hand with improved American trade prospects and the near disappearance of a prolonged deficit in its international payments. Some signs are also reported that it will be Europe rather than the United States that will face payment deficits and currency pressures in the months ahead.

The return flow of gold to the United States, after an almost steady drain since 1957, was helped by the sale of Soviet gold to pay for grain, but even more by the stabilizing actions of the international gold pool set up in 1961 by the United States and seven other nations to police currency raids such as the one that threatened the dollar in October 1960.

And perhaps just as important was that finally gold speculators came to believe the many U.S. government assurances that America wouldn't devalue the dollar or raise the price of gold above the present official price of $35 an ounce.

The return gold flow is reported by the U.S. Treasury's exchange stabilization fund, administered by the Federal Reserve System. The fund's gold holdings fell $55 million in January; but recovered by $28 million in February. $33 million in March and $176 million in April. At the start of May it stood at $265 million.

This fund is separate from the Treasury's own reports on its monetary gold reserve. This year there has been only one decline, $50 million Feb. 12. Since then it has remained at $15,463,000,000.

With the stabilization fund's $182-million gain in the first months of the year, and the gold reserve's $50-million decline, the total gain for the country since Jan. 1 comes to $132 million.

International bankers see the reverse flow of gold, small as it is, a sign that the international gold pool is working well in discouraging speculative raids and stabilizing the major world currencies.

ing senators, congressmen, and convention delegates.

The campaign carned to an end Monday night in the Golden State with speeches by Goldwater and Rockefeller, chanting supporters, Dixieland bands — and worried police.

Winding up a 12-city, 1,500-mile election eve tour of California, Rockefeller flew into a hot reception at Los Angeles International Airport.

Police, finding that a good part of the welcoming delegation were Goldwater supporters, called in reinforcements.

If it hadn't been for Goldwater before Rockefeller's arrival, one officer said, "We would have had a riot on our hands."

By MORRIE LANDSBERG

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—California Republicans choose between Barry Goldwater and Nelson A. Rockefeller today in a last-in-the-nation primary that may decide the kind of Republican the party will nominate for president in July.

A turbulent finish climaxed the campaign for 86 pledged delegates in a showdown between the professed conservatism of the Arizona senator and the moderate credo of the New York governor.

It's a winner-take-all affair, with no write-ins permitted.

Balmy weather, quickening interest in the presidential race and a fierce, party-splitting battle for the Democratic senatorial nomination were expected to bring out nearly 70 per cent of the state's 4 million Democratic voters and 2.9 million Republicans.

Goldwater and Rockefeller closed their pounding drive Monday night with final salvos as discordant as the rival victory predictions.

Goldwater, disputing statewide polls which tabbed Rockefeller to repeat his May 15 Oregon victory, told an airport rally in Los Angeles: "We're going to win. I've never been so confident."

Rockefeller, who finished up two terminals away at the sprawling airport, avoided any predictions. But his supporters remained optimistic that he would win—and win fairly big.

Police called for help when Rockefeller landed after a 12-city, 1,500-mile aerial tour in which he continued to assail his opponent's political views as extremist.

About half the 1,000 persons in the welcoming crowd appeared to be Goldwater supporters who booed Rockefeller's assertion that the senator has taken "an impulsive and irresponsible stand" on the use of nuclear weapons.

The long-awaited decision by Republican voters will come after 7 a.m.-to-7 p.m. balloting—8 p.m. in four counties—in 32,861 precincts.

Goldwater will await the returns in Los Angeles, Rockefeller in New York.

Areas to watch: Los Angeles, Orange and San Diego counties, bulwark of Southern California's predominant voting strength; San Francisco and its populous neighbors, and the agricultural central valley.

Democrats had a choice to make, too, on whether to hand their 154 national convention votes to opposing slates headed by Gov. Edmund G. Brown and Los Angeles Mayor Samuel W. Yorty. Both delegations are informally pledged to President Johnson.

The real Democratic battle involved an acrimonious clash between Pierre Salinger, press secretary to two presidents, and State Controller Alan Cranston for the party nomination for ailing Sen. Clair Engle's seat.

The race pitted Brown, organized labor and the Democratic club movement, behind Cranston, against Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk and other party elements supporting Salinger in a power struggle. Salinger has played heavily on his close ties with the late President John F. Kennedy in bucking a well-established state figure who polled the highest vote of any candidate in winning reelection as controller in 1962.

The top man in the 12-man Democratic contest will take on George Murphy, a former Hollywood song-and-dance man who has been active in Republican affairs for 25 years; Leeland Kaiser, San Francisco industrialist, or Fred Hall, Long Beach attorney who once was governor of Kansas.

Winding up his appeal for votes Rockefeller said the presidential primary "will decide the future of the Republican party."

The New York governor said he offered "a constructive, forward-looking and responsible alternative to the Democratic administration now in power."

Goldwater, he said, offered "a narrow doctrinaire extremism—outside the mainstream of American political thought."

The Arizona senator, in turn, complained that Rockefeller has "continued to misquote me," adding, "I do wish that the opposition had been a little more sensible."

Rockefeller, in speeches throughout the week, appealed to the "I like Ike" fans by declaring his views fit Dwight D. Eisenhower's definition of a responsible Republican.

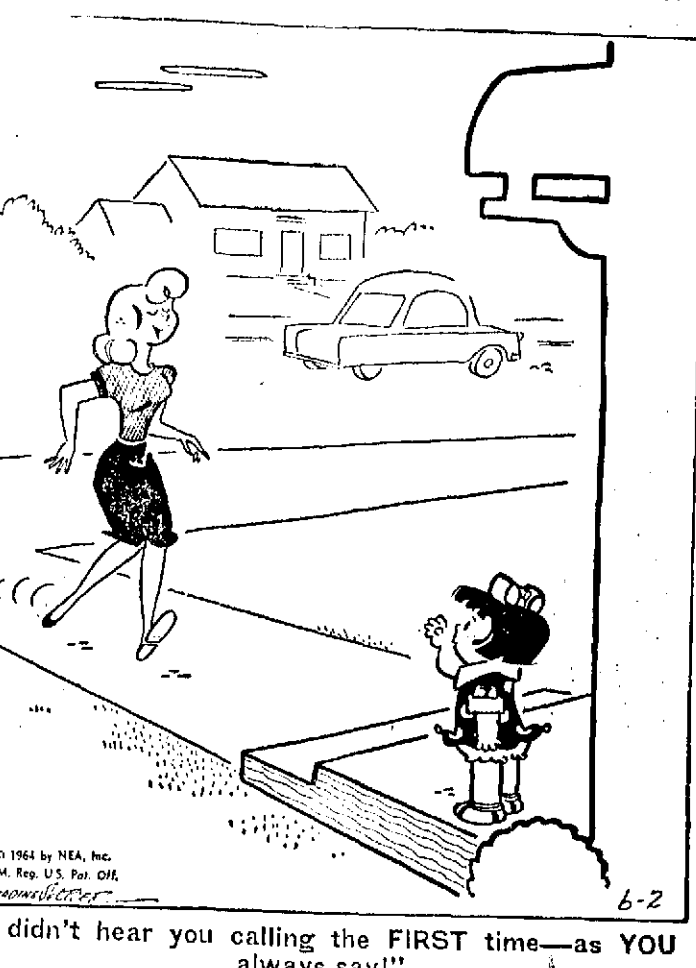

Goldwater pointed to Eisenhower's denial Monday that he tried to read the senator out of the Republican party. He said it confirmed the former president's neutrality in the scramble for the presidential bid.

The Arizona senator was asked about published reports that Dr. Milton Eisenhower, brother of the former president, would endorse Rockefeller. He said he had breakfast with Milton Eisenhower Monday and the latter indicated he would not support Rockefeller.

In New York, Rep. William E. Miller, Republican national chairman, said a Goldwater victory would edge him "very close to the nomination in delegate strength." A Rockefeller victory, he said, would enhance the governor's position "tremendously."

ican Policy Committee, said he remained uncommitted on closure but that a number of senators were getting restive and would be ready to cut off the marathon debate soon.

Mansfield called in the Senate at 9 a.m. today and said this pattern would likely be followed until the measure is passed. Southerners did most of the talking Monday as the debate went through its 67th day after a three-day Memorial Day weekend.

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Spokesmen for opposing camps in the long Senate civil rights battle agreed today that the measure had been "watered down" somewhat by a substitute package of amendments.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., an ardent civil rights advocate, said "There is no question that the bill has been somewhat watered down" but added that it also had been strengthened in some respects.

Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., one of the Southern opponents, said "There may be some watering down effect in these amendments, but even with them it is a bad bill and we Southern senators are against the bill in its entirety and still hope to kill it in its entirety."

The comments came as the Senate began its fourth month, 13th week and 67th session on consideration of the anti-discrimination measure passed by the House early in March.

Javits and Sparkman spoke out in programs recorded for radio and television use in their home states.

Javits predicted a show down vote before June 15 on the effort to limit Senate debate and force voting on the measure. He forecast Senate passage before the end of this month.

Today's session was expected to be low key, because senators are struggling back from the three-day Memorial Day recess.

LBJ Says Talks

Political reaction to the talks came from Rep. Melvin J. Laird, R-Wis., chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee. He said in a Congressional Record statement that the conference won't be productive unless the administration gives up what he termed false premises that belong in the past.

Laird said executive policy in Southeast Asia is unrealistic in its approach to Communist-inspired problems.

Rusk, asked about Laird's charge, declined comment. The assembled Cabinet officers, ambassadors and military leaders have been instructed by the President to review American policy in Southeast Asia and make suggestions for its future course.

There were growing indications that military moves were being charted to show pro-Communist insurgents the United States means business. Limited military pressures have been applied in the past—notably in Thailand in 1962—with temporary success.

Increased U.S. military activity in Southeast Asia could take a number of courses including jet reconnaissance flights over Communist North Viet Nam or a carrier task force cruising just outside North Vietnamese territorial waters—close enough to be seen from shore.

Education of children in crowded classrooms and the provision of training for untrained adults are among the major problems facing American education, Mills told the graduates.

Cites Freedom as Strength

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., told 192 Arkansas State Teachers College graduates Sunday that the nation's strength is in its freedom and faith.

Mills delivered the principal address during commencement exercises here.

He said his faith in the future of the nation is grounded in the successes of the past.

"Ours has always been a nation of doers with a healthy strain of dreamers," Mills said. "Our achievements have been great because our imagination has been unbounded and our

Endorses Foubus

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The executive board of the Arkansas State Council 38 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFL-CIO), has endorsed the sixth term bid of Gov. Orval E. Foubus, the governor's office said Monday.

Thinks Limit Needed for Governor

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Governatorial candidate Odell Dorsey said Saturday that the state needs a law limiting a governor to one four-year term to eliminate "the easy buildup of a political machine."

Dorsey said he would ask for such a law if he was elected.

He called a news conference to announce his 15-point platform and open his drive for the Democratic nomination. He had not selected his campaign headquarters or picked a campaign manager yet, however.

Dorsey said his major planks were the result "of many visits to all counties of Arkansas, many conversations with voters and days of study of our needs."

He said one of the greatest needs is a single four-year term for governor, without the right of succession.

"The people would benefit by the very fact that their governor would be spending his time working for them instead of constantly running for office," he said.

At least two of his platform planks, rural roads and parks expansion, already have been announced as major planks of Gov. Orval E. Foubus, who is seeking his sixth term.

Dorsey's 15 platform points:

1. Return of the government to the people.
2. Honest elections.
3. A four-year term for the governor.
4. Elimination of the tax on a tax caused by requiring Arkansas to pay state income tax on the money they paid as federal income tax.
5. Creation of an education system second to none.
6. Elimination of one-man control with the four-year term.
7. Welfare payments more in line with the cost of living and more medical care for the elderly.
8. Expansion of the industrial program with more emphasis on home grown industry.
9. A better program to keep young persons in Arkansas.
10. Implementation of a rural road program "that could have started years ago."
11. More aid to agriculture, especially help in expanding farm markets and expanding new ones.
12. Continued support of the Arkansas River navigation project.
13. An accelerated parks and

Cotton Supply Most on Record

WASHINGTON (AP)—The International Cotton Advisory Committee predicted today that the world supply of cotton after this year's harvest will be the largest of record, totaling 73 million bales or 4.5 million over a year earlier.

An increase such as this usually is followed by price difficulties for producers.

The committee—an intergovernmental organization of 40 cotton producing and consuming nations—said that, as in other recent years, the United States will hold most of the world's surplus. Because of this, it said, the markets are likely to be stronger in other producing countries than this one.

Nevertheless, the committee said it now appears that world consumption of cotton in the marketing year ahead will continue on the current upswing. It added that conditions appear favorable for a continuing high level of exports.

Fatally Shot

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP)—Police here said that Lee Van Thomas, 38, a Negro of Pine Bluff, was fatally shot Sunday in a fight involving about 15 Negroes at a home here. They said an elderly Negro man was held on an open charge in the shooting.

alternative to the Democratic administration now in power."

Goldwater, he said, offered "a narrow doctrinaire extremism—outside the mainstream of American political thought."

The Arizona senator, in turn, complained that Rockefeller has "continued to misquote me," adding, "I do wish that the opposition had been a little more sensible."

Rockefeller, in speeches throughout the week, appealed to the "I like Ike" fans by declaring his views fit Dwight D. Eisenhower's definition of a responsible Republican.

Goldwater pointed to Eisenhower's denial Monday that he tried to read the senator out of the Republican party. He said it confirmed the former president's neutrality in the scramble for the presidential bid.

The Arizona senator was asked about published reports that Dr. Milton Eisenhower, brother of the former president, would endorse Rockefeller. He said he had breakfast with Milton Eisenhower Monday and the latter indicated he would not support Rockefeller.

In New York, Rep. William E. Miller, Republican national chairman, said a Goldwater victory would edge him "very close to the nomination in delegate strength." A Rockefeller victory, he said, would enhance the governor's position "tremendously."

CHATTER

By "BILL"

Some time ago, we read an article entitled, "Fortune in Cash Found Among Pink Bloomers in Safety Deposit Box."

Seems as if the lady took no chances; she put cash, pants, stockings and all in the safety deposit box. Of course, after she was gone and they started an investigation they were amazed to find $120,712 in bills from one to five hundred dollars denomination. There was a pillowcase stuffed full, to be counted; but the estate was estimated at more than $300,000. She left a Will, but as you might guess, it was contested.

It may be smart to be thrifty, but we think it would be more fun to just simply spend the money. The reading of our Will, no doubt, will sound something like this: "Being of sound mind and in full possession of our faculties, we spent every cent we had and left nothing to nobody!" At least there will be no argument over what is left, and just think of all the fun we will have!

Yes sir, if you have a fortune in cash, large or small, hidden away in pink bloomers or down in your sock, we have a few suggestions as to what to do with it.

At Raley's you will find brand new whipped-cream crepes in the loveliest summer dresses ever. The polka-dot shirtwaist with full skirts, smart washable and wearable... $15.95. The vinyl jersey in black-white or brown-white, sleeveless, sheath dress by Minx Modes, sizes 7 to 15, $17.95. Our summer stock dresses is here... see them today!

And while you are here, take a look at the smart French cotton suits... perfect for that vacation trip. There are others, all to be found at Raley's Style Shoppe, Hope's House of Fashion.

The Garden Offers a Beauty Bonus

The same "green thumb" that makes your garden beautiful can help you be more beautiful too. With a little planning, the hours you spend in the garden this summer will pay off in a beauty bonus that will last long after the last of the flowers have withered.

First step: Outfit a beauty basket to keep handy in the place you store your garden supplies. Your beauty basket should contain a pair of heavy duty gloves, your favorite face cream, a rich hand cream, a space-saver box of tissues, skin freshener, sunglasses, and head scarf or straw sun hat.

Second step: Before going out into the garden, gently apply face cream in smooth upward strokes. Remove excess cream with a tissue, leaving a light film on the face. The warmth of the sun as you garden helps the cream penetrate deep into your skin.

SIDE GLANCES

Outdoor Furniture Colorful, Care-free and Comfortable

Outdoor furniture for 1964 is more beautiful, comfortable and sturdy than ever before. Brighter, more colorful fabrics, deep and luxurious latex foam rubber cushions, and improved cast aluminum construction make the 1964 designs the most exciting ever offered to modern outdoorsmen.

Many of the new patio pieces can bring their summery charm indoors when the cool weather arrives without detracting a bit from the appearance of the family room, and a chaise is just as comfortable for watching television as it is for soaking up sunshine.

Patio chaises and chairs this year are often amply cushioned with genuine latex foam rubber cushions — a distinct departure from the fashion a few years ago when cushions were a rarity. The foam rubber provides a softer seat.

The cushions are covered in vinyls and waterproofed polished cotton upholstery fabrics this year. The vinyls come in more colors than the rainbow, and every imaginable texture and style is available.

Polished cotton fabrics feature big, bold prints in vivid colors. These fabrics are waterproofed and resist sunlight very well. In some cases they also boast a stain repellent.

Construction is sturdier this year with many more stout cast aluminum lines available. These designs combine the light weight of aluminum with the strength and intricate beauty of wrought iron furniture.

Wrought iron furniture is still prominent, not only for seating pieces but for tables. One popular set of tables comes in several different sizes and features practical glass tops, which are easy to clean and can endure any weather.

Redwood furniture is also popular this year, especially for such classic outdoor furniture pieces as a picnic table with matching benches. Redwood offers remarkable resistance to weather, aging and hard knocks.

University to Get a Swimming Pool

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — President David W. Mullins of the University of Arkansas announced Saturday that bids will be taken soon on the university's $1 million student health center and swimming pool.

Students voted several years ago to allocate a portion of their fees to finance the facilities. The pool, 42 by 75 feet, will cost an estimated $450,000. The health center will have 25 double rooms, an emergency room and other facilities in two stories at an estimated cost of $550,000.

Fourth step: Don sunglasses to protect eyes from glare and ward off squint lines. The scarf over hair. Harsh sunlight will dry and damage normal hair, and tinted hair actually changes color and becomes noticeably harsh and brittle if sunburned.

No Political Heir Named by Nehru

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mohan-das Gandhi picked Jawaharlal Nehru as his political heir. But Nehru, who died Wednesday in India's only prime minister in its 17 years of independence, groomed no one to succeed him.

He was an intellectual who never learned to delegate authority. The result could be gruesome. India has 450 million people in one of the poorest and most jammed countries on earth.

Nehru, a democrat who had enough blind worship among the Indian masses to be a dictator, had sought to guide his country along the democratic path.

But not long before his death he was reported saddened by the incessant quarrels between Indians of different languages, religions and races. And there is bickering in his own strong political instrument, the Congress party.

Seventeen years of democracy — in a country where about 340 million people are illiterate — may have been too brief a time to create any real dedication to the democratic principle.

In India now there is no one in sight with the stature of Gandhi or Nehru.

They not only led the fight for Indian independence before it was achieved in 1947 — thus becoming symbols of it — but by the very nature of these two men their leadership was more than just political.

It was also spiritual, which is unique in the 20th century. They were selfless, with their only interests India and its people. Both had gone to school in England. Both were lawyers.

Both abandoned law to work for freedom from Britain. The British jailed them both for years. That much they had in common. There was much they didn't. Gandhi was humble. Nehru was arrogant.

It was ironic that he once described himself in an anonymous article he wrote as intolerant of other people and with contempt for the weak and inefficient.

While his leadership and vision were tremendous, and he was a miracle for India, he himself was inefficient. Example: He concentrated decisions in his own hands, was his own foreign minister. The result was called an "administrative jungle."

Gandhi put together his philosophy of civil disobedience and nonviolent resistance under the influence of many sources, including the Sermon on the Mount, Henry Thoreau, Leo Tolstoy, John Ruskin, Percy Bysshe Shelley and India's early Jain sect which preached Ahimsa, the principle of non-injury to living things.

But he was never the complete pacifist the world imagined. Louis Fischer, a Gandhi biographer, said he had a "violent nature and his subsequent Mahatma-calm was the product of long training. His mind was a battlefield on which caution constantly contended with passion."

He used nonviolence against the British in India when the British had all the power and the Indians had none. Nehru went along with Gandhi on non-violence as a tactic to be used when useful, to be abandoned when not.

After years of preaching non-violence to his friends until they are flat on their backs. POOPED

Dear Abby: Please don't get the idea that we don't love children, because we do. But why do some people invite you to their homes for dinner and allow their young children to hang around all evening and dominate the conversation? When we invite guests to our home, our children are told to come in, say "hello," stay a few minutes and then run along and entertain themselves. Then we are left to hold an adult conversation, which is why we invited our guests to our home in the first place. All this togetherness with children is getting out of hand. Or should we do what our friends do and just let our children climb all over our guests, intrude in their conversations, and take the attitude if the guests don't like it they can stay away? What are your ideas on the subject?

Bob Thomas at the Movies

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The view from C. E. Toberman's office window affords a vista of the Paramount Theater, the Masonic Temple, Grauman's Chinese Theater and the Roosevelt Hotel. He can gaze at the structures with satisfaction. He built them.

If his office faced east, he would be able to see other landmarks for which he was responsible. At 84, he speaks with firm voice and certainty.

"This may sound egotistical," he tells a visitor, "but I think you will find it is true: that I have done more than any other man to build Hollywood as it is today."

He enumerates what he has built: the Egyptian as well as the Chinese Theater; the first big apartment house, the Garden Court; the first department store; a host of buildings along the boulevard; a studio, box factory and storage building; numerous subdivisions; etc., etc. He also helped found Hollywood Bowl and the Pilgrimage Theater.

Toberman's office is in the new 12-story building of First Federal Savings, which he built from assets of $1,100 to $90 million.

He came to Los Angeles in 1902 from his native Texas and worked for the Santa Fe Railroad seven days a week at $75 a month. Homesickness sent him back to Texas, but a drought returned him here. He lived in Hollywood and took the trolley to work downtown. It was a rickety ride that made him seasick every day, and he decided to find work closer to home.

He dropped into a real estate shack on the boulevard—then Prospect Avenue, unpaved and rutted. "Need a partner?" he asked.

violence among nations and abhorring war, he sent his army into Goa, a Portuguese colony in India, to take it over. He tried to stand aloof, preaching neutrality, only to be invaded by Red China. Then he armed. The influences on Nehru were different from those affecting Gandhi — liberalism, socialism, Marxism. But he was not a Communist. He was a Socialist who sought to bring his country abreast of the times through socialism.

Gandhi said of himself "I am a Christian and a Hindu and a Moslem and a Jew." Nehru was an agnostic with all that means in skepticism about religious beliefs.

But one of his greatest services to India was in seeking to make it a secular state in which the various religions, since none could dominate the government, would live together without trying to crush one another.

After Gandhi's assassination Jan. 30, 1948, just a few months after Indian independence, Nehru became the dominant figure and remained so until his death. Perhaps Nehru's greatest contribution to his country was in being an inspiration to its people, for through that he managed to keep the country and its people glued together as he gave them a sense of direction.

And perhaps the greatest difference between him and Gandhi was in their vision of the Indian future. Gandhi looked back, distrusted mechanization, thought in terms of spinning and cottage industries. Nehru wanted India industrialized and thought in terms of steel mills and hydroelectric dams.

Feeding the Baby Is Easier Now

Eating new or unusual foods is one of the fun parts of traveling — at least for Dad. Mother probably most enjoys not having to fix the meals or clean up afterwards.

If children, especially babies, are part of the caravan, when, where and what to eat can be a problem. But feeding baby is easy now that disposable glass bottles, filled with ready-to-use formula, are available.

Most older youngsters are conservative when it comes to trying new foods. Fortunately, those old favorites, hamburgers and hot dogs, are available almost everywhere you go — if nothing else on the menu strikes the children's fancies.

If your crew likes to eat out in the open — as most tots do — why not plan to have lunch somewhere along the road? Many states provide attractive picnic areas near busy highways just for that purpose. And though cooking facilities are often available, why go to all that work?

Bread, sandwich meat, cheese, mustard, potato salad, milk and all the other picnic fixings can be purchased in the morning before you start out, or, if you prefer, picked up in one of the towns you pass through. What's left over from lunch makes a good afternoon snack. And best of all, there's almost no cleaning up afterwards — just deposit the bags, bottles and plastic containers into a litter can.

Even your youngest offspring — the baby on formula — can enjoy the picnic, with no worry on your part about formula fixing. The Nursette, the ultimate in baby feeding, is ready to use anywhere, any time. Because of a unique processing method, this pre-sterilized disposable, see-through glass filled with Enfamil ready-to-use formula needs no refrigeration and doesn't have to be warmed. All you do is remove the safety seal cap, attach the type of nipple you prefer, and feed the baby.

Better yet, let Dad feed the baby while you prepare lunch for the rest of the family. Then you'll all be ready to hit the trail again in almost no time.

asked the harried-looking realtor. "Hell, no," said the man. "But I'll sell you the whole business for $100."

Toberman made a deal for the business, including shack and furniture; $10 down and the rest later.

The Story: Milo March returns to the club to hear Lola Crane sing. The club is owned by Nick Potti, who has threatened Milo.

VIII

It was five minutes after Lola left before I had my next visitor. This time it was the headwaiter.

"Mr. March?" he asked politely, as if he'd never seen me before.

"Yes."

"Mr. Potti wishes to know if you'd join him at his table for a drink?"

"Where's his table?" I asked.

"Over there, sir." He pointed to a table that was ringside but was still in the shadows. I could see that someone was sitting at it.

"I'll be happy to," I said. I followed him back through the tables.

Nick Potti was sitting at the table alone. There were already two drinks on the table. His looked to be creme de menthe, but mine was a double. There was a grim expression on Nick Potti's face; he looked like a violin string that had been drawn too tightly.

"Hello, Nick," I said as I sat down. The headwaiter glided away. "It was nice of you to invite me for a drink."

"Cut it," he said. "What are you doing here, March?"

"I told you last night. Good have a good singer and a good jazz combo. I came here because that's the kind of stuff I dig. There's no reason why I should stop coming just because I suddenly found out who you are. Besides, I don't think that's the reason you asked to see me."

"No."

"No. I think you called Washington after I left today and were ordered to stay on top of me while I was in Cleveland and find out as much as you could."

I smiled at him and raised my glass. "Shall we drink a toast to Thomas Rako?"

He made a sound deep in his throat but it wasn't a word. "I don't like you, March. I don't like you even a little bit. And people I don't like have a way of getting unhealthy. You might remember that."

other office today. But you might remember something, too. I don't care much for you either. And the people I don't like have a way of getting a long vacation—provided they manage to stay around long enough to go to that Big House. Do we understand each other?"

"Yeah," he said. He bit the word off as though it had a bad taste. "What're you doing in Cleveland, March? Rako hasn't been here in seven years?"

"Where has he been, Nick?"

"How do I know? Probably in a grave somewhere or wandering around not knowing who he is."

"Which would you put your money on, Nick?"

He snarled. "You still didn't answer the question. What're you doing in Cleveland?"

"I was enjoying myself until you just butted in." I smiled at him. "I'll take you off the hook, Nick. You can tell Johnny Clark that I'll be in Washington sometime tomorrow and that I'll look him up after I get there." I finished my whiskey. "Thanks for the drink, Nick. I'd better get back to the bar before the headwaiter gets upset because I'm at one of the reserve tables."

"You can keep the table," he snapped. He stood up and looked down at me. "You'd better watch yourself, March."

"It's a habit I got into a long time and I can't seem to kick it. What's the matter, Nick? No harsh words about the fact that I was talking to your canary a few minutes ago?"

"I'm busy," he said.

I slept on the plane most of the way to Washington. When I arrived, I took a taxi to the Peraton Hotel. It was a good hotel and it was also the place where Thomas Rako had been staying at the time he disappeared.

I checked into the hotel and was taken up to my room. The bellboy checked everything and then waited to be rewarded. I gave him five dollars. His eyes widened as he saw the bill. He looked up at me and waited. He knew that big a tip demanded extra service.

"How long have you worked here?" I asked.

"Two years, sir."

"Is there anybody on the staff who was here seven years ago?"

"Yes sir. The bell captain was and there is one bellhop who's been here that long. And I believe the night clerk and several of the room waiters have too. I wouldn't know about other staff members."

"What's your name?"

"Freddie."

"Okay, Freddie, thanks for everything. If I need something, I'll ask for you."

"Yes, sir," he said, and took off.

Baugh New Head Coach of Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Sammy Baugh, pleased when named assistant coach of the Houston Oilers just two weeks ago, has an even better job today—that of head coach of the American Football League team.

Frank (Pop) Ivy was fired Monday as head coach and general manager and immediately replaced by Baugh, who Ivy had hired as his offensive assistant.

Ivy was shocked to learn when he reported for work that Baugh, the former National League passing great, had succeeded him with a one-year contract.

"An opinion has been built up among the fans that Pop can't cut the mustard," said club owner K. S. (Bud) Adams, in making the announcement.

Meanwhile, there was the possibility that former coach Lou Rymkus might return to the Oilers organization as line coach.

Although Baugh indicated he was considering adding John Steber, one of his New York Titan assistants, to his staff, he did not rule out the possibility of hiring Rymkus.

Rymkus was fired as head coach of the Oilers early in the 1961 season, after coaching the club to the American League championship the previous season. The Notre Dame graduate has not had a coaching job since.

Baugh, who only Saturday said his assistant coaching job suited him "just fine," became the club's fourth head coach in five seasons.

Speculation had existed for months that Ivy, who coached the Oilers to both their best and worst seasons, would be replaced.

But Oilman Adams seemed reluctant to make the change. With the start of training camp less than two months away, it appeared Ivy had weathered the storm.

It was fan reaction that caused him to replace Ivy, Adams said.

Adams said he decided abruptly over the weekend to make a change dictated by the fans' reaction to Ivy's 6-8 season last year.

Houston's first losing season was preceded by three Eastern Division titles and two AFL championships.

This will be Baugh's second appearance in the league as a head coach. He signed a three-year contract with the New York Titans, now the Jets in 1960, the year the league was formed. He was fired by Harry Wismer, former Titan owner, after the club had a 14-14 record for 1960 and 1961.

Dancer Keeps Field Small at Belmont

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Northern Dancer has done such a convincing job on the first two legs of the Triple Crown that the smallest field in 21 years is expected for Saturday's running of the Belmont Stakes.

At the moment, only the gallant Dancer and his chief rival, California's Hill Rise, are entered for the 1 1/2-mile test. No more than two or three others are expected for the longest of the Triple Crown series.

It will be the smallest field since Count Fleet swept to a 25-length victory in 1943, opposed by only two others.

Northern Dancer, E. P. Taylor's courageous little Canadian colt, hustled to a neck victory over the favored Hill Rise in the Kentucky Derby, then confirmed it with a sparkling 3 1/4-length triumph in the Preakness, the first two jewels on thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown.

And if his would-be rivals needed any further convincing, the grandson of Native Dancer provided it Monday in a sparkling workout at Belmont, going 1 1/4 miles in 2 minutes, 4 1/5 seconds.

Horatio Luro, Northern Dancer's trainer, was so well pleased he indicated the colt may not blow out later in the week.

"I figured he would go the 1 1/4 miles in about 1:52 and looked for 1 1/4 in around 2:06," Luro said.

"I thought he went very nicely. The work should set him up just right for the Belmont. I am confident he will be ready for the weekend."

Controversial Bill Hartack, who guided the Dancer to his Derby and Preakness triumphs, will ride again as the dainty, short-striding Dancer seeks the first triple since Citation in 1948. In the 38-year history of the series, it's been done only eight times.

El Peco Ranch's Hill Rise, who will be ridden by Willie Shoemaker, also had a 2:04:15 workout, at Aqueduct. Like Northern Dancer, Hill Rise finished strongly. The fractions were nearly the same.

No other starters are definite for the $125,000-added attraction at Aqueduct, but Harbor View Hinton, Washington, 62.

Doubles — Rollins, Minnesota, 11; Bressoud, Boston; Mathews, Kansas City; Allison and Oliva, Minnesota, and Hinton, Washington, 10.

Triples — Oliva, Minnesota, 5; McAuliffe, Detroit; Green, Kansas City; Fregosi, Los Angeles; Versailles, Minnesota, and Hinton, Washington, 4.

Santa and Helpers Come to England

By GEOFFREY MILLE R
LONDON (AP)—Santa Claus has come to England—with his helpers.

But these helpers aren't jolly little elves. They're large, grim, suspicious men.

Santa Claus, in this case, is a horse, favored to win Wednesday's running of the rich Epsom Derby. His helpers are his handlers, chief of whom is trainer Mick Rogers.

Santa Claus, made the 5-2 favorite by Britain's legal bookies, arrived by air from his Irish training quarters Monday, and immediately was spirited away to a secret hideout several miles from Epsom.

Rogers said he was mounting a day-and-night watch over the horse to guard against the possibility that he may be doped. There have been several recent scandals involving the doping of horses at English tracks.

Five American-owned horses are among the 17 named at the three-day forfeit sale, the smallest field in four years for the race that awards $201,801 to the winner.

Among them is Baldric II, owned by Virginian Howell E. Jackson. Baldric II won the 2,000 guineas at Newmarket earlier this year and will be shooting for a double worth $314,846 in the Derby.

Baldric II, priced at 10-1, arrived from his French training quarters Monday with his own supply of sterilized water.

"He doesn't like English water," said assistant trainer Charles Count.

Wagner Proves His Worth to the Indians

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

"Don't Fence Me In" never was Leon Wagner's theme song.

When the slugging outfielder was traded by the Los Angeles Angels to the Cleveland Indians he said bluntly:

"Instead of trading me they should have pulled the fences in and doubled my salary."

The Angels, however, were unable to accommodate Wagner. The Indians may have to—in the salary department at least.

Wagner proved his point again Monday night, leading Cleveland to a 3-0 victory over the American League-leading Chicago White Sox, collecting homer No. 11 and a single and scoring two runs in support of Jack Kralick's four-hit pitching.

Wagner hit only two homers at home last year in the wide-open spaces of Los Angeles' Dodger Stadium while hammering 24 on the road. But the Angels decided to leave the fences where they were and traded Wagner for pitcher Barry Latman and first baseman Joe Adcock.

Now Wagner's making a solid case for a pay raise.

His latest hot streak—11 hits in 18 at bats including homers in the last three games—has boosted his batting average to .309 and his runs-batted-in total to a league-leading 40. At this stage of the season, he's almost half way to his 1963 figures of 26 homers and 90 RBI.

Boston's Dick Stuart, meanwhile, continued his homer hammering, hitting his seventh in the last nine games, a two-run shot in the eighth inning that gave the Red Sox a 4-3 victory over the Angels.

In the other AL games scheduled, Wally Bunker posted his sixth victory without a loss as Baltimore whipped Kansas City 8-4 and Dick Stigman pitched Minnesota to a 2-1 victory by checking the New York Yankees on five hits.

The only National League game scheduled — Los Angeles at Pittsburgh—was rained out.

Wagner provided Kralick with the only run he needed by hitting the homer off Juan Pizarro in the fourth. The Indians scored their other runs in the sixth on Larry Brown's two-run single.

Kralick, bringing his record to 5-1, was in serious trouble only in the seventh when the White Sox loaded the bases with two out. But he got Gerry McNertney, batting for Pizarro, to line out and end the threat.

Pizarro now is 5-2.

Angels starter Barry Latman, who hadn't given up an earned run, led 3-2 going into the eighth and retired the first two Red Sox batters. Then Felix Mantilla beat out an infield single and Stuart followed with the game-winning homer.

The Red Sox, however, lost outfielder Carl Yastrzemski, the AL's leading hitter last year, for a day or two at least when he spiked himself in the left ankle in the first inning. The cut required stitches.

Dick Lally's one-hit relief over the final 3 1/2 innings preserved Bunker's perfect record. Bunker was tagged for a two-run homer by Wayne Causey in the third and chased in the sixth when Ed Charles, hitless in 19 previous trips, slapped a two-run single that cut the Orioles' lead to 6-4.

The Orioles put the game out of reach with a five-run third inning. Norm Siebern and Dick Brown each stroking two-run singles in the rally. Luis Aparicio homered for Baltimore in the eighth.

The Twins managed only six hits off Yankee starter Ralph Terry, but Don Mincher provided a run with a homer in the second inning and a single by Bernie Allen, a wild pitch, a force out and Zoilo Versalles' single produced the other run in the fifth.

That was enough for Stigman, who did not let a Yankee past second base until Elston Howard broke up his shutout bid with a homer in the eighth. Stigman has a 2-3 record.

Sportswear Adds a Touch of Magic During the Summer

Sportswear is more than a type of apparel—it aptly describes a whole way of life. This spring, leading sportswear manufacturers have turned their magic wands in the direction of our most active citizens—the female sailor and the cruise passenger.

Their results should please even the saltiest sailor. For the new boating clothes are not only pretty but extremely practical. The reason? The fabrics are treated with an invisible fabric finish, "Scotchgard" stain repeller, which sheds both water and oil-borne stains.

A whitened blue which gives the appearance of "faded blue denim" is the number one color on the ship parade. In dacron-cotton fabrics, the "blue denim look" is seen in jackets, skirts, culottes and the hip-hugger skinny pants.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, professional golfer's leading money winner, has all but cemented the favorite's role for the PGA's 46th championship tournament here next month.

The 24-year-old hometown idol tested the Columbus Country Club course with impressive results Monday, beating Julius Boros by four strokes in a "Round of Champions" match.

Defending PGA king Nicklaus toured the 6,051-yard par 34-36-70 layout in fine fashion with a 34-33-67. Boros, the National Open champion, was one over with a 36-35-71.

Nicklaus says it probably will take a 275 total to win the July 13-19 events.

But Boros, despite losing by four strokes, said he thought 272 or 273 could take the tourney, if the weather is good.

"This course is in fine shape," Boros told newsmen after the match. "I wasn't too happy with my putting. I haven't been putting well this year."

The pro stars were dueling to set the target score for the 13th annual National Golf Day, held last Saturday.

Amateur golfers, who paid $1 each to play on National Golf Day, needed a four-under-par score, with handicap, on their favorite courses to earn certificates from the PGA indicating they "beat the champ."

The money they dished out, along with Monday's receipts from the Nicklaus-Boros match, goes to the PGA for distribution to various projects and charities.

A gallery estimated at 3,500 paid $5 a head to watch the action and saw Nicklaus take the lead for good on the second hole.

PGA officials watched the match to see if any course changes will be needed before the 170 qualifiers come here in July to compete for the championship.
